The enormity of the untruths propagated by the “Exit” campaign would be laughable were they not so dangerous. What is sad is that they appear to be having a malefic effect.

Meanwhile Mr Cameron is making a mess of the “In” campaign.

In other countries – Ireland for example – where referenda are more common, the government is obliged to issue clear “Pro” and “Con” arguments. So far we have only received a very poorly prepared partisan leaflet from the Government.

Poll results are worrying and business is at a standstill.

There is nothing more we can usefully say!

If you are seriously considering the sale of your business it is important that you wait until after this Referendum and then that you speak to an experienced and knowledgeable broker; companies are not sold on a push-button basis, so talk to Chesham because you only sell your business once!
